The Week in the Legislature

By J. S. Cowper

A declaration that the Liberal party is not opposed to Social Credit but is prepared to test any plan—social credit included—that may prove practical to unshackle the province from bondage to the Jugernaut of Interest, was made by Liberal leader W. R. Howson, K.C., last Thursday night, when accorded an acclamation-nomination in the Masonic Temple at Edmonton. It evoked a scene of great enthusiasm on the part of the 1200 Liberal delegates who filled the hall.

The declaration, which is regarded as the official attitude Liberalism will adopt towards Social Credit in the ensuing provincial elections came when the Liberal leader defended Mayor "Gerry" McGeer from sneers which members of the Reid Government had directed against the Vancouver money reformer. Ridiculing members of the government for shedding crocodile tears over the plight of widows and orphans whose allowances will be reduced, while refusing to reduce interest rates or even to reduce their own salaries, Mr. Howson styled the Vancouver Mayor and Liberal member "the Crusader who will lead Canada out of its difficulties".

It is understood that Mayor McGeer will speak on behalf of the Alberta Liberals at principal points in the province during the coming elections.

Only a couple of days before, when the Conference of the Canadian Mayors was making demands on the Ottawa government that it relieve all the municipalities of Canada from relief obligations and assume them out of the federal treasury, and while Mayor McGeer was telling a Parliamentary Committee that if Vancouver is forced to go into a receivership "to the bondholders he would personally lead a mob and run any sheriff who appeared into Vancouver Harbour. Mr. Howson sought to have the Legislature pass a motion supporting the efforts of Mayor McGeer and his colleagues, to have the federal government assume responsibilities for relief now dumped upon the municipalities.

The motion came up as an emergency one. There was no time to give the customary 48 hours notice to have it placed on the Order Paper. Mr. Howson accordingly moved the Legislature to bring before it "a matter of urgency". He unfolded the plight of the Canadian mayors, then before the Ottawa government, and urged the need for the Alberta Legislature to place itself on record as being behind the mayors in their attempt to have relief responsibility placed where it belongs—on the shoulders of the Ottawa government.

There is no doubt that the motion would have passed had the members been free to vote as they wished, but Premier Reid refused to consider the fight of the Canadian Mayors at Ottawa next day as a matter of urgency". He had the Speaker so ruled. When a vote was taken the U.F.A. members—many of them no doubt with anger in their hearts—had to line up behind the Premier and vote as he indicated. Long before the motion could have been placed on the Order Paper and the matter brought up in the ordinary way, the Ottawa meeting was over.

However a telegram was sent that afternoon to Sir George Perley, Acting-premier, signed by the leaders of the Liberal, Conservative and Independent parties in the Legislature stating that they strongly supported the efforts of the Mayors Conference to relieve municipalities from the cost of unemployment relief.

A personal issue between the Government and Mr. Omer St. Germain member for St. Albert who crossed the floor at last session to join the Liberals, came up again. Mr. St. Germain had previously asserted that his son, a University of Alberta graduate, had been dismissed from the lands and mines department after three years service, as a punishment because the father had exercised his political freedom. The accusation had been denied.

On a resumption of the charge last week, Mr. St. Germain disclosed that before he crossed the floor an emissary of Premier Brownlee had waited on him at his home in Morinville, offering to give him his son promotion and an increase of salary if the father would stay as a government supporter.

"It seems strange," said the St. Albert member, "that on February 4th, 5th and 6th my son was so satisfactory that he was offered a higher position and more salary, yet on February 7th, the day after I crossed the floor, he was sent only for dismissal."

Mr. Brownlee denied that he had authorized any emissary to visit Mr. St. Germain and bargain with him to stay in the party.

Liberals made a final effort to pare down the budget. On the motion of Joe Dechen, member for St. Paul, they moved to withhold Supply until the government furnishes details of the $33,033 spent on new autos for ministers and officials. The U.F.A. members defeated the move.

A similar fate befell the efforts of L. A. Giroux, Liberal member for Grouard, to strike out the vote of $15,117 for the upkeep of Government House. But the Government had one narrow escape when Liberals, Conservatives, Independents and Labor united to try to have the Budget sent back for revision. The government saved the day for itself and for expenditure on the scale it had planned, by a bare majority of one vote. It was the closest division the government had had in its history.

The government, no doubt, is prepared for defeat whenever it goes to the electors; that it should come within one vote of being defeated in the House was something it wasn't prepared for. The vote nearly took the breath away from the ministers. Had the Budget been sent back, they would almost certainly have had to reduce their own salaries, as they had already reduced mothers pensions, old age pensions, municipal grants, hospital grants and relief appropriations, and had been criticized for not reducing their own salaries.

Cowboy Boxes To Buy Ranch

(From Overseas Daily Mail)

A new star has arisen in the boxing skies. Ed. Wenstob, a 20 year old Canadian boy, fought his second fight in England at the Empire Stadium, Wembley, and drew with Eric Seelig, the ex-German cruiser and middleweight champion.

Wenstob drew with one of the hardest fighters in the world, and his determination made him the hero of the big crowd. Wenstob told me why he is fighting.

"I like fighting, but my life is with animals, steers and horses," he said.

"I got into the game by accident, and when I have won enough money to buy a ranch in Alberta I am going back."

"I have given myself eight years. By the time I am 29 I hope to have enough money."

The fight had not the glamour of many that have taken place, yet it managed to become an epic. How Seelig fought for 12 rounds, almost the whole contest, with his eye terribly cut yet earned and deserved a draw cannot be explained.

Perhaps his mother, who, like her son, now lives in Paris, tells the story best of all: "He is a brave boy, my son."

The grey-haired mother, who watched the fight without even a flicker of emotion when her son seemed to be taking a terrible hiding, did indeed sum up his character.

WENSTOB DRAWS WITH SEELIG

An amazingly good performance was given at the Wembley arena by Ed. Wenstob, the young Canadian rancher, when he held Eric Seelig, Germany's best middle-weight, to a draw over 12 rounds.

Few conceded Wenstob more than an outside chance, but the boxing

Irma L. O. L. Celebrates 26th Anniversary

On March 27th the Irma L.O.L. No. 2066 celebrated the 26th anniversary of the institution of the Irma Lodge, by putting on an entertainment and social evening in Kiefer's hall, to which the other fraternal organizations and numerous friends were invited. Owing to the impassable roads and inclemency of the weather, the attendance was not as large as it would have been under more favorable conditions. However, lunch was served to approximately 50 couples. Rev. Bro. W. E. Seiber of Stony Plain, gave a comprehensive outline of the ideals of our association, which was well received. The evening concluded with a dance which lasted until after 3 a. m. Music was furnished by the Christensen orchestra from Jarrows. The music was full of pep throughout. W. Bro. J. Stead was chairman and filled the role in his usual efficient manner. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to all those who contributed to the evening's entertainment, especially to Bro. Seiber who made the trip from Stony Plain under most trying conditions, and also the players from Ross, whose production of "A Perplexing Situation" added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

beginner, with barely 20 fights to his credit, well deserved a share of the honors. In fact, he went very near to beating the hard-hitting German when he had him Groggy and bleeding from a nasty eye injury in the fourth round.

The further the fight went the fiercer it became, but though Seelig was compelling his rival to trade punches he was willingly met. Blows flew thick and fast, and if Wenstob had rather the worse of the scoring, he shook Seelig badly on occasions. There was very little to choose at the end, and the draw verdict was not one to quarrel with.

INSTITUTE COLUMN

"What shall we have for dinner?" is an oft recurring question, and the answer is not always easy. Wise menu planning is a task which demands knowledge, ingenuity and resourcefulness.

During the Lenten season many housekeepers find the question a more perplexing one, particularly if religious convictions require abstinence from meat, which at other times is so popular an item in the dinner menu. It is then that fish comes into its own, and if the housekeeper takes advantage of the varieties available, there is no danger that the Lenten menu will be monotonous. The Canadian housekeeper is indeed fortunate, for nowhere does one find fish of more excellent quality, and nowhere a wider choice.

There are on our markets salt-water fish from the depths of the sea, fresh fish from inland lakes, rivers and streams, shell fish in variety, and fish packed in cans ready to serve at a price within the reach of all.

Canned and Dried Fish

The list of canned fish is constantly enlarging. To many, canned salmon is more familiar than the fresh, and housekeepers appreciate its convenience, its delicate flavor and variety of uses. Other kinds of fish which make a valuable addition to the household food supplies are available in this form at moderate cost. These may be served plain, or used with other foods in salads, sandwich fillings or in cooked dishes.

Smoked and dried fish are other forms in which this food may be purchased, and there are many appetizing ways in which they may be prepared for the table.

Fish contributes to the diet much the same nourishment as meat. It supplies protein and minerals of importance. It is easily digested and suitable alike for children and adults. The lack of which may result in serious consequences. Goitre, a distressing and disfiguring disease, prevalent in many inland districts, is unknown when sea foods are used plentifully.

For this reason, and because of its many other advantages, fish is becoming more popular in menu making. It may be given a place in any meal of the day; it is appropriate not only for Friday but any day in the week and at any season.

The wise housekeeper, when she is faced with the question of what to have for dinner, will not overlook the variety of attractive and delicious foods which come from Canadian waters.

HE WANTED DAMAGES

"What can I do for you, Lars?" asked lawyer Brown, in his main street office.

"Vel," said Lars, "Ay want some damages on Olson."

"Olson, the veterinary? Tell me why?"

"Oh, you see, my cow won't eat, so I tell Olson, and he give me bottle medicine to fix it. He say to put funnel in cow's face, den pour in medicine and cow will get hungry."

"Ay ent have regular funnel, so I ask Olson vill dinner horn do. He say it will do."

"So Ay shove small end of dinner horn in cow's face and pour in de medicine. At ones dat cow get so hungry she try to eat de horn. But she can't—it stick in her neck. Den she cough and de horn go doot. Cow get scared and run up de road, coughing and tooting."

"Purty soon she come to de river. De man on de drawbridge tenks a boat ban tooting, so he open bridge and my cow fall in. She get drowned, too, so I tenk Olson should pay."

The popularity of the bicycle, as the poorman's steed, is shown by the fact that in England there are now over 8,000,000 pedal cycles.

A sport journal this week recalls the fact that a man once pedalled a bicycle a distance of 78 miles, 100 meters in one hour. This wonderful feat was accomplished by Vanderstuyft a Belgian, on the track at Paris, in Sep. 1928, with a motorcycle pacing.

Is Democracy A Failure?

Articles appearing in this column from week to week have, over a considerable period of time, had two main objectives,—to convey information and to provoke constructive thought on the part of the reader. At the same time an earnest endeavor has been made to refrain from discussion of questions which are the subject of partisan political controversy or of sharp differences of opinion arising out of racial or religious views. In the present disturbed state of the world, when practically every financial, economic and social question has become part and parcel of some political creed it is no easy matter for any writer, unless he confines himself to meaningless platitudes, not to appear to take sides and express views which others may interpret as somewhat partisan in character one way or another. Notwithstanding this difficulty an honest effort has been made in this column to steer clear of partisanship while at the same time in discussing matters of public interest to give some point and value to these articles.

The writer is firmly convinced that what is needed at all times, and never more so than at present, is adherence to well grounded sound principles, the dissemination of accurate information, and clear constructive thinking on the part of each individual citizen. A demagogue may be clever and interesting and able to sway a mob, but he is not a safe and constructive leader and a mob is a dangerous thing.

This week we propose to submit a few questions, but do not intend to answer them. Rather our object is to have the reader answer them for himself or herself, in other words, do their own thinking.

General Hugh S. Johnson, until recently director of Roosevelt's NRA programme, stated the other day that "democracy is the best government in the world for peace and prosperity, but it is the worst government in the world for a great war or a great crisis." Is this true, and if it is true what does such a statement or situation imply? Does it mean that democracy as a system of government is right, but that the people who constitute the democracy, and therefore the government, are unreliable and cannot be trusted? Is it the system or the people who are weak? Does it mean that when things are proceeding smoothly and the people have a minimum of worries, they are careless, thoughtless, indifferent? Does it mean that when a crisis develops these same people become panic stricken, emotional and reckless, ready to act precipitately without taking thought of the ultimate consequences of their action?

Does General Johnson's statement, if true, imply that the nations of the world should abandon democracy as a system of government and revert to more autocratic and dictatorial forms of government, thereby relinquishing the political freedom which is now theirs, and entrusting to such more autocratic governments full control at all times, in peace and prosperity as well as in times of war, emergency and crisis?

If democracy is not to be abandoned, and we are not to accept Communism, Fascism, Socialism, or other forms of government which involve abandonment of individual democratic rights and freedom, how is democracy to be made safe for the world at all times, because it cannot be thrown into the discard in times of trouble and emergency and resumed and made to function efficiently the moment the crisis passes?

It will be admitted that with the coming of what has been termed the Industrial Revolution of the Nineteenth Century, human society was completely reorganized. The worker has risen from his feudal state and there has been an extraordinary rise in wage levels and living standards. With this rise of the economic status of the worker there has been an even more pronounced rise in his social and political status. Public schools, newspapers, labor unions, and the influence of wage-earners as consumers have established the political power of the workers and primary producers. The universal ballot, without property or educational qualification, have given control of government to the masses of the people.

Commenting on this development a professor of economics in one of the great American universities has written: "Here lies the danger of injury to progress. This power has been obtained, naturally enough, in advance of economic knowledge. Visionary theorists and self-seeking politicians may guide and direct it into perilous paths. Nobody wants to throw back this tide of democracy. Nobody can. But it needs to learn self-control and to gain understanding. It has neither at present."

Is this professor of economics right? Is democracy endangered by lack of self-control and understanding on the part of those very people who have the most to lose and suffer if democracy is lost to the world, and who have the most to gain and enjoy if democracy is maintained and made to function in times of emergency and crisis as well as in times of peace and prosperity? In a word, are our present political rights and power under democracy to be unthinkingly utilized in a time of stress and emergency to overthrow and destroy democracy itself? Are people going to prove the truth of General Johnson's observation that democracy is not a safe system in times of crisis?

How can people be taught self-control in times of emergency? How can the tendency to panic be overcome? How can understanding be given to the masses so that they will refrain from panic and exercise self-control and thus overcome the crisis and prevent the taking of disastrous action? How, when there are always demagogues, agitators, self-seekers whether in politics or other spheres, ever ready to inflame and mislead the masses, are these masses of voters who to-day control all governments, going to be educated to think for themselves, refrain from being influenced by mob psychology, and exercise self-control through the obtaining of sound knowledge and an understanding of basic irrefutable principles?

Is the task too great for democracy, that is, for mankind itself? Or must mankind revert to the state from which it has struggled upward through the centuries and make confession that, being incapable of self-government in the mass, there is only one thing to do and that is to repose its trust and place the power which the masses now possess in the hands of a few to exercise full power, direction and control over them? Finally, if this is done, will the masses remain content to have it so, or will the old struggle of man be commenced all over again?

This is the acute problem facing the world to-day? Democracy itself must and will answer it. Will that answer be for its own preservation, or will it be for self-destruction?

Bells Rung Electrically

Italian Villagers Looked For Miracle Until Mystery Solved

When they heard the bells of the little church of Santa San Pietro ringing for a number of days and nights, apparently by themselves, the villagers of Luca, Italy, thought it portended a miracle. The clappers of the bells were tied and the parish priest locked the bell tower and put the key in his pocket. But still the bells went on ringing. Finally the local electrician discovered the bells were being rung electrically as the overhead wire for the trolley line between Luca and Maggiano had come into contact with the belfry. Now the villagers are able to sleep again.

DOUBLED UP WITH RHEUMATISM

Could Not Wash Himself Nor Brush His Hair

So bad was his rheumatism that his friend declared he would never work again. Although he is 70 years old, he proved they were wrong. Read what he says—

"I am seventy years of age. Last Christmas I was completely doubled up with rheumatism. I could not brush my hair nor wash myself. People said I should never work any more. I am working harder than a young man to-day. Thanks, many thanks, to Kruschen Salts. I take them in my tea, and I have recommended them to many. I could not get in or out of bed myself, nor sit up. But see me work now—12 hours a day sometimes. Kruschen Salts have done it!"—G. J.

Rheumatic conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channel. In addition, there are still other salts in Kruschen which prevent food fermentation in the intestines, and thereby check the further accumulation, not only of uric acid, but of other body poisons which undermine the health.

Moderate Improvement Shown Is Expected To Continue

"The moderate improvement reported a year ago may be expected to continue," the fourth annual "Farm Outlook for Saskatchewan" prepared by Dr. William Allen and Professor E. C. Hope of the department of farm management of the University of Saskatchewan, predicted. Wheat doubtful but more likely to rise than decline, some improvement over last year in prices for beef cattle, dairy cows and butter, rising prices for sheep and work horses, and a rise in wool towards the end of the year, are some of the cheerful factors indicated.

Uruguay Imports Potatoes

Although They Plant And Harvest Two Crops Yearly

In Uruguay, South America, they have two potato crops in which the first and most important is planted in September and October and harvested from December to February, while the second is sown in January and February and dug three months later, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. The domestic crop is insufficient to meet consumption. Imports consist principally of table potatoes, but there is a certain demand for seed. The bulk of the table potatoes come from Argentina. Seed potatoes are imported from the United Kingdom, Germany, France and Spain.

Using Sun For Cooking

Solar Heat Collector Shown At Meeting Of Scientists

A device for making the sun do a part of man's work was shown to the American Association for the Advancement of Science at the beginning of its winter meeting in Pittsburgh. It is a solar heat collector which, in twenty minutes, develops temperature in excess of 400 degrees Fahrenheit. The inventor is the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, Dr. C. G. Abbot. The device can be used for ordinary cooking purposes. Dr. Abbot has been using it on Mount Wilson (California) for the generation of steam for power. It is hoped that ultimately it can be made to drive large steam engines at a practicable cost. The apparatus employs a number of small mirrors fixed at right angles to the earth's axis and mounted on a frame which will turn on an axle parallel to the earth's axis. There are a number of tubes filled with black oil and protected from loss of heat by double vacuum jackets. These transmit the collected heat to a reservoir of oil, and into this reservoir covers are inserted for cooking purposes of a tubular boiler for generating steam.

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now returns to tell Dustin and Spike, Goddard, who had grabbed him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them, stops and talks to Edith. He mentions their dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin furious. He insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a creek.

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Duro Stone has been the Broken Spur men rustling Carr's cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shoots Kane. He fixes the shooting on Peyotl Gregg, a drug addict, who stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, did not know whether he was guilty or not. Then Kane and Edith return to the Broken Spur ranch.

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Crewe and Stone speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dad Kane that Stone had found. Stone thinks of a possible solution, and accompanied by Edith Carr, rides out to Red Wolf to test out his theory, which proves correct, and they find the rich gold deposit mentioned in the prospectors' notebook. As they return to the ranch, they meet Dustin leaving the house, who purposely, but unsuccessfully tries to ride down Stone.

A Law Every Mother Should Know and Observe

Never Give Your Child An Unknown Remedy without Asking Your Doctor First

According to any doctor you ask, the only safe way is never to give your child a remedy you don't know all about, without asking him first.

When it comes to "milk of magnesia," that you know everywhere, for over 60 years, doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia for your child."

So—always say Phillips' when you buy. And, for your own peace of mind, see that your child gets this; the finest men know. Made in Canada.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

the court-house door. Dustin's finger crooked in the shadows and another figure joined him; the loose, shambling shape of Peyotl Gregg.

"See that man, Peyotl?" Dustin pointed to Stone. "That man has come in to meet the man Gerald Keene, who comes on the night train. The man will call himself Keene, but his right name's Kane. You see, the old man found a gold mine and it was on the Hour-Glass land. This nephew wants to find him. If he finds him . . . you'll hang; Don't forget that. I'll be 'at the hotel when you're ready to go back to the Broken Spur."

Peyotl gave him one frenzied glance and his right hand sought his coat pocket. Dustin gave a little gasp. The man was half-crazed with fright and murderous intent. Dustin grabbed him by the arm. A little white foam lay in the corner of the Peyotl's mouth and his eyes glared with a light there was no mistaking. After a dozen of those infernal cigarettes Peyotl was ready to kill and Dustin knew it.

"Don't you take a chance," he muttered. "Don't pull anything at the station or in public where people can see you. Wait! You'll be sure to get a chance in the dark if you wait. I'd trail 'em if I were you and choose some dark place. Of course I don't know what you're plannin' . . . You're a damned fool, Peyotl."

He sauntered off in the dusk and Peyotl, half walking, half reeling, headed for the little station. Stone had already picked up Carr and Crewe and was waiting at the chute where the flying sparks from the hard-set brakes. Stone himself was the first to leap to the steps of the Pullman and was almost knocked off his feet by the rush of a man who did not wait for the train to stop.

"Duro . . . Duro Stone, by all the gods!" A great hand smote Stone on the shoulder, almost knocking him over. "Who's with you? We must get together."

Wait a bit . . . Stone muttered behind his teeth. "Here's your present partner . . . We'll have to get together as soon as we can. I've got a lot to tell you. We need two heads here."

The crowd prevented any exchange of confidences and then Crewe came up with old Joe Carr.

"Duro . . . Stone grabbed Joe by the arm—"you wanted to meet Mr. Keene."

A hand thrust forward and old Carr seized it. This was Gerald Keene, the nephew of his old-time partner. Gerald Keene, the only man who could help him in his hour of trouble. He took that hand as his might snatch at a life-preserver flung in roaring seas.

"If you're Gerald Keene," he said, "you don't know how darned glad I am to see you. We've got a lot to talk over this very night."

"How about some grub, sir, first of all?"

"Fine. And after that we'll have a few drinks at the Silver Dollar and then home to the Hour-Glass."

Those last words reached Peyotl standing among the freight. He was satisfied now. The party would go to the Silver Dollar and that would give him his chance. He slunk off up the street and busied himself in the Mexican quarter of the town while Stone headed with his party for the hotel.

That dinner with its long delays and frequent drinks that came slowly from the bar, kept them till nearly ten o'clock and old Joe Carr fought his way from the table in spite of Crewe. His manager saw signs of what was coming and wanted to avoid it. Carr insisted.

"Of course Keene wants to see the sights," he clamored. "I haven't been in town for a year. I'm a wolf and this is my night to howl. Hell, man! Come on. No one's going to get drunk. I just want to play my old favorite 'Cripple creek' once more. Let's get down to the Silver Dollar. They have a big lottery there at eleven."

They headed for the Silver Dollar.

TEETH

In Mendez's jacale, Peyotl took account of stock. Mendez was absent but Peyotl knew where to find what he wanted. From a hole in the trodden clay-floor he extracted an old cigar-box from which he took a red-and-green package of those ill-favored cigarettes, lit one and sat down to think. The very first puff stimulated him; the next gave exhilaration. Dustin was a good friend and the future seemed rosy and happy.

He passed rapidly from the first stage of half-lifted despair to the next, in which he saw complete fulfillment of his own desires. When he had smoked three cigarettes on an empty stomach he knew suddenly that he faced a golden future. If only this man Gerald Kane . . . or Keene . . . could be stowed. Who was this stranger that he should sound a man to the galleys?

"By Gar . . . The home-made cigar satisfied him . . . He flung the cigarette to the floor, stamped out the spark, felt in his pockets and laid their contents before him . . . the stubby little Derringer pistol and three cartridges fished, he thought unseen, from Dustin's desk; a knife, a box of matches and a huge yellow-and-green bandana neckerchief that stunk and reeked of the peyotl that he had been smoking. He very carefully loaded both barrels of the pistol, snapped it shut, wrapped it in the bandana neckerchief and thrust it into his coat-pocket on the right side.

This stranger must be removed! If he remained in Seco, his search for old man Kane, his uncle, would disclose the fact that he, Peyotl, had killed him. The result was plain.

He had heard those men say that they were going to the Silver Dollar and, of all places, the Silver Dollar was the most satisfactory for the carrying out of his plans. Of course he could not go brazenly into the bar and shoot down this man Gerald Kane. That was not necessary. Some subtlety must be devised. He felt in his pocket to assure himself that the bandana lay ready-to-hand and moved down Seco's main street toward the lights of the Silver Dollar.

CHAPTER XV.

Peyotl Gregg had friends in Seco of whom Sam Dustin knew nothing. For five years he had supposed that he was the sole source of Peyotl's dope supply but that was because Peyotl had successfully smuggled his store into the Broken Spur unknown. If Dustin had known, it would have gone hard with Peyotl. The moment he left Dustin, Peyotl sought out one of those friends.

Pascual Mendez heard sheep (and thus shows how far Peyotl had fallen. Not for nothing does the proverb run "If a man will do that, he'll steal sheep"). Many of Pascual's sheep were black and Peyotl was not one of the whitest . . .

He was too wise to enter that brightly lighted room where a dozen men knew him. From the back door that gave on the littered yard he studied the place.

The bar was crowded, with men from the Broken Spur, the Cross Keys and with a dozen "Dry-farmers" in town for a night off. The roulette table and the chuck-a-luck stand were doing a healthy business and May Wilson keeping cases at the fare table had her hands full. As Peyotl stared in through the party open back door, he realized that the setting was perfect. All he needed was the opportunity.

The slatted front door slammed suddenly open and Peyotl shrank back into the dark as Carr and his party flung into the room.

Fees Of Writing Experts

State Witnesses In Hauptmann Trial Ask Big Pay

U.S. Attorney-General David T. Wilentz said the fees of some of the handwriting experts and others who testified for the state at Bruno Richard Hauptmann's trial were so high they would not be paid until they are cut.

Seven of the eight handwriting experts, who swore that Hauptmann wrote the Lindbergh notes, submitted bills, totaling $46,592. The eighth, Dr. Wilmer Souder, United States government expert, of Washington, put in only a bill of $69.15 to cover his expenses.

Highest of all was Albert S. Osborn, dean of the experts, who billed the state for $12,000 for his services. His son, Albert D. Osborn, asked $9,655.

Caution Part Of Courage

Wise Man Will Never Take Any Foolish Risks

Caution is just as necessary an asset as truly adventurous spirits, as courage, and it is not opposed to the latter. Men should learn to take no unnecessary risks. There will always be sufficient which will seem to be necessary to the conduct of business, but the wise man will take no foolish risks just in order to prove his courage. The greatest fighters in the history of the race were not those who accepted every challenge which fools offered. The best sea captain will never defy the storm, but will face its fury whenever he has to do so without fear. It is no sign of courage to defy the lightning or to challenge gravitation. The man who accepts unnecessary risks is not a hero but a fool.

Another Tradition Upset

Earth Ebbs And Flows Like Tides Of The Sea

A favorite occupation of physical scientists is the careful upsetting of history, fables or common belief by the insertion of facts which prove or explain how things really happened.

From time immemorial the good dirt regions of earth have been considered stable. Even the Romans famed instigators of tall stories, never thought of calling the ground anything but terra firma. Now, Dr. Marian Stetson, Harvard astrophysicist, tells us that not only are we walking on a thin upper "crust" of a wrinkled old apple called Earth, but even this crust heaves to and fro like the tides of the sea.

Everyone knows the sea has its ebbs and flows, but no one guessed that land areas could be affected likewise until Dr. Stetson said so. With super-accurate clocks or chronometers, and more careful squinting at the stars, he corrected those "clocks" to the split second and found that Europe and America drift apart as much as sixty-three feet twice daily and come together again by a similar amount. All of which means another time worn tradition is ready for the discard.

But for all the rosearchists, when Popeye and Barnacle Bill step ashore with their curious "seelers" they can't get away with any tales about how difficult it is to get used to the billowing waves of land tides after a peaceful jaunt at sea. Nor is sixty-three feet enough of a variation to excite European or American fluctuations of policy when attempts are made to agree on matters of trade, finance and world peace.—Christian Science Monitor.

Strange Facts About Clothes

Origin Of Many Fashions We Take For Granted

Why does a tailor place a man's coat buttons on the right side? Because this fashion enabled him more readily to get at his dagger. Why are stockings adorned with "clocks"? Because they were originally put in to hide the gusset seams, when only cloth stockings were worn, and were later retained because they were considered ornamental. Why are men's hats surrounded by a useless ribbon? Because 4,000 years ago women bound a loose fabric about their heads by means of a fillet. Why do Hussars and grenadiers wear busbies? Because they borrowed the original head-dress of Hungarian mercenaries in the British Army. This was a cloth cap edged with fur. Regimental jealousy kept adding inches to this narrow adornment until the cap became all fur except its crown! Why does a man's morning coat bear two useless buttons above the tails? Because coats used to be almost like skirts, which needed buttoned up on and an m m m ed buttoning up to keep them out of the mud. Why does a barrister wear a black gown? Because, when Queen Anne died all the barristers went into mourning—and Queen Anne is still dead!

REVISION OF FEDERAL VOTERS' LISTS COM-MENCED APRIL 1st

23 Revisal Districts in Battle River:
R. E. M. Stewart, of Vermilion, Registrar.

The federal voters' list is to be revised during the next three months, the official period being from April 1st to June 30th. As R. E. M. Stewart is the registrar of electors and revising officer for the electoral district of Battle River, the revising officer will be located at Vermilion.

All those who have attained the age of 21, or who have been granted naturalization papers since the general registration in 1934, will have an opportunity of having their names placed on the voters' list. Qualified electors whose names were not included in the list last fall, those who have recently moved into a constituency, and those who have moved from one poll to another in this electoral district will be able to have their names placed on the list for the proper polling division.

Application may be made to the revising officer as follows:

1. Applications of objection to the retention of the name on the list. (On the grounds of removal, death, lack of residence or naturalization qualifications, etc.)
2. Applications from electors for registration as such.
3. Applications from electors for registration as such through an agent.

4. Applications for correction of names, addresses or occupations on the lists.
5. Application for registration by an illiterate person.
6. Application for registration of an elector by a relative or employer.
7. Request for the transfer of a name from one electoral district to another.
8. Request for the transfer of a name from one poll to another within an electoral district.

Objection to the retention of a name on the list may only be made during the month of April so that the person objected to may be given at least two weeks notice to appear before a Court of Revision. Other applications may be made any time during April, May or June, prior to the date set for the sitting of the Court of Revision for the district in which their polling division is included. The Registrar may also accept these latter applications at the sittings of the court.

For the purpose of this revision the constituency of Battle River has been divided into 23 revisal districts in each of which a sitting of the Court of Revision will be held on a date between May 15th and July 1st. At these sittings electors or their agents will have an opportunity of showing reason as to why their names should be added to the list. The decision of the revising officer may be appealed to a judge.

The places at which the Court of Revision will sit are as follows:

1. Provost, May 20; 2. Metiskow, May 21; 3. Houghenden, May 22; 4. Silver Heights, May 23; 5. Hardisty, May 27; 6. Irma, May 28; 7. Wainwright, May 29; 8. Chauvin, May 30; 9. Edgerton, May 31; 10. Paradise Valley, June 4; 11. Kitcoxy, June 5; 12. Vermilion, June 6; 13. Aurburndale, June 7; 14. Islay, June 10; 15. Lloydminster, June 11; 16. Marwayne, June 12; 17. Dewberry, June 13; 18. Mannville, June 14; 19. Minburn, June 17; 20. Innisfree, June 18; 21. Myrnam, June 19; 22. Dewent, June 20; 23. Clondanoid, June 21st.

Applications of any type or information may be obtained from the Revising Officer, R. E. M. Stewart, Vermilion.

SOCIAL CREDIT

A Social Credit organization meeting was held in Glenholm school on Friday evening, March 29th, which was well attended. A very instructive talk on Social Credit was enjoyed by all. At the close of the meeting it was decided to start a Social Credit study group. The next meeting will be held at Glenholm school on Friday evening, April 12. Everyone cordially invited. Before leaving, 23 members were enrolled.

SPORT PEEPS

The Irish Sweepstakes appear to be the greatest gamble in the whole world. At Santa Anita racetrack the amazing sum of $15,896,365 went through the pari-mutuels, during the 66 days of racing this winter. This called for an average of $250,000 per day. Betting on the ponies seems to be almost a disease, once the germ gets a foothold in the system.

In the Grand National race at Aintree the favorite Golden Miller threw its rider, and the bookmakers were saved over nine million dollars. Pictures of the horse show the jockey tumbling off without any sign of a stumble or break in the horse's gait. Jockey Wilson will have a lot of difficulty in explaining those pictures. Just imagine how popular he is among those chaps who put their money so liberally on that horse.

The race for honors in the Big league hockey has narrowed down to two teams, Toronto and Montreal, leaving the finals an all-Canadian affair. We kept rooting for Clem Loughlin and Murray Murdoch, but somehow our wishes were not respected. Both the local boys had a successful season in their respective clubs and will receive a welcome from their many friends here.

The way that negro Joe Louis of Detroit treats opponents in the boxing ring, stamps him as a contender for big honors. Making his bout with Natie Brown his 17th victory since July, He is riding along on the "high horse of success." Maybe they will draw the color line when it comes to a real show down with some of the big white hopes, if Louis shows signs of taking that fancy belt emblematic of the heavyweight championship.
